Port Ewen Corps To Give Concert

First-Prize Musicians Are to Play Sept. 13th for Uniform Fund

The Port Ewen High School and Bugle Corps will present a concert in Port Ewen on Wednesday evening, September 13. A bazaar will open immediately after the concert and will continue the following evening.

The concept of a concert presented by a drum corps instead of the usual band is a new one in this area, corps members believe. The Port Ewen corps first attempted the concert idea at the annual freshmen carnival at Accord this summer and their effort met with enthusiastic approval.

Confident that the concert and bazaar in its home village will become an annual affair, the corps is planning the entertainment as its "First Annual Concert and Bazaar."

Location for the event will be Immigrant street opposite the town of 14000 American Legion building in Port Ewen. Proceeds will go to the corps uniform fund.

The Port Ewen High School and Bugle Corps is nearing the close of a successful parade season. The outfit entered a first prize in every competitive parade they entered this year except one. The exception was the New York State High School Band and Bugle Corps Convention in which they placed second.

'Bell' on Tour

New York Sept. 9 (AP)—The "Freedom Bell" symbol of the country's crusade for freedom left here by train today for Kansas City. The huge bell, which will be on tour in the U. S. for the next three months, will be installed in the tower of the West Branch City Hall on Oct. 21, United Nations Day.

Truman Confidant Gives Tip; Hit by Marines; Acheson Safe

By ERNEST B. VACCARO
Washington, Sept. 9 (AP)—A close adviser to President Truman said today that Louis Johnson is on his way out as secretary of defense.

This administration confidant, who declined to be quoted by name, said that Johnson may step out before the general election in November.

The report lacked any official confirmation from the White House or Defense Department. In fact, the current feeling in Congress is that the President is still sticking by his defense secretary.

Johnson has been the target of a swelling flood of criticism from congressmen and other sources. The most recent criticism, which came last week-end when Rep. Taft (D-N.Y.) in a second demand for Johnson to quit, said he understood Johnson helped force the late Defense Secretary James Forrestal out of office.

And only yesterday the Marine Corps League adopted a resolution calling for Johnson's removal. Mr. Truman has vigorously defended Johnson on more than one occasion.

However, some White House aides said the President has been increasingly concerned over persistent reports of differences between Johnson and Secretary of State Acheson.

One daily confidant of the President said that while Mr. Truman will defend to the limit an appointment from outside of which he is concerned because of published reports of Defense Department criticism of the Secretary of State.

Looks Acheson Strong
"Of this you may be sure," one White House aide said, "the President feels that Secretary of State Acheson has borne up in this case with supreme dignity and will remain in the cabinet after Johnson has gone."

How long Johnson will stay on the job this source said, is the only question. He added that he may step out sooner than most people realize.

Mr. Truman told a news conference on August 3 that both Johnson and Acheson, who also has been a target of congressional and other attacks, would stay as long as he is President.

And only last week after Johnson had said he had no intention of quitting unless Mr. Truman asked him to do so—the President reaffirmed that he wanted to keep Johnson.

Since that time, however, more than one White House official has reported the President now feels that was only about Acheson.

And it is known that highly placed members of the Democratic national committee are urging a change in the defense post.

Apple Chokes Child
Manhasset, Mass., Sept. 9 (AP)—An apple contributed to the death of two-year-old Mary Lou Williams of Braintree when she fell into North river yesterday. The child's father pulled her out almost immediately. Efforts to revive her with an inhalator failed.

Medical Examiner Herbert M. Blanchard reported death was due to suffocation. He said an apple the child was munching when she toppled into the stream caught in her throat.

Aim to Mobilize 30 Divisions for Security of Nation

U. S. May Be Requested to Send 20 Overseas to Bolster Defense of Europe

Washington, Sept. 9 (AP)—Senator Taft (R-Ohio) threw his support today behind a proposal of Senator Lodge (R-Mass.) to boost American military strength to the point where 30 ground divisions would be available for fighting.

Lodge told the Senate yesterday that this country may be called upon to furnish 20 divisions to bolster the defenses of Europe against possible attack by Russia.

The Massachusetts senator, a member of the American delegation to the United Nations said it probably will take 15 divisions to defeat the North Korean Communists. He added that another five must be kept at home to be used to meet any number of unpleasant possibilities in other parts of the world.

Taft told a reporter he would support a move to bring the fighting divisions up to 30, which would mean about 500,000 men. But he added that he wants to go slow on sending troops to Europe until a unified defense plan is worked out and European countries pledge troops to their own defense.

To Discuss Plan
"There is still no final plan for defending western Europe," he said.

Coordination and build-up of western Europe's armed forces is to be a principal topic discussed by American, British and French foreign ministers in New York next week. The extent of western Europe's participation in such plans is also to be talked then.

Highly authoritative sources estimate that Germany can probably supply 10 divisions of troops.

Senator Lodge said 60 divisions may be needed to contain any Russian aggression in Europe with this country probably to be asked to supply a third of them.

Need More Marines
As a part of the proposed increase in American ground strength, Taft said he thinks the number of marines ought to be boosted substantially.

However, he indicated he doesn't go along with the idea of giving the marines a place on the joint chiefs of staff, as proposed in bills offered by Senator Douglas (D-Mont.) and Rep. Mansfield (D-Mont.).

The Marine Corps League which closed a convention here yesterday, also urged this action.

Down Payment Limits Listed

Washington, Sept. 9 (AP)—New regulations on installment-plan buying, effective September 18, call for these minimum cash down payments and maximum pay-off limits.

Automobiles (new and used)—One-third down and 21 months to pay.
Refrigerators, food freezers, radio and television sets, phonographs, stoves, ranges, dishwashers, ironers, washing machines, clothes driers, sewing machines, vacuum cleaners, air conditioners and dehumidifiers—15 per cent down and 18 months.

Furniture and rugs 10 per cent down and 18 months.
Home repairs, alterations, improvement—10 per cent down and 30 months.

Any of these articles costing less than $100 are exempted from downpayment requirements, but subject to the pay-off time limit.

Wall of Gas Is Biggest Handicap to Diggers; Saving Men May Take Long Time

New Cumnock, Scotland Sept. 9 (AP)—One hundred and eighteen trapped miners huddled patiently in tomblike blackness 720 feet under ground today while rescuers worked to clear a deadly invisible wall of gas that blocked their way to freedom.

Ten others caught in a massive cave-in Thursday night were feared lost. Only eight escaped when the mine roof fell in.

Some of the trapped men slept nearly 40 hours in their dark dungeon. Some sang Scottish folk songs. Others munched sandwiches and drank beer passed to them by rescue workers wearing special breathing apparatus.

The gas-masked rescue teams worked in relays of five, drilled their way upward through a 30-foot wall of coal from a nearly abandoned mine last night to reach the trapped men. They opened a hole big enough for a

Foreign Bases, Friends Vital to U. S.—Dewey

Albany, N. Y. Sept. 9 (AP)—Governor Dewey still hammering criticism at President Truman's foreign policies looked forward today to a week-end at his farm home near Pawling.

The Republican nominee for reelection filed his newest blast at the national administration last night at Syracuse.

In a speech before about 400 persons attending a farm dinner at the New York State Fair, the governor asserted that "no one knows where the U. S. stands on foreign policy until a new statement is made."

He credited foreign bases and "foreign friends of the United States with preventing a third World War."

The governor planned to fly to Pawling today (8 a. m. E.S.T.), after spending the night in Syracuse.

Meanwhile in New York city, Democratic nominee Walter A. Lynch was predicting victory for himself in the gubernatorial election Nov. 7.

"I'm going to win and win big," the Fair Deal congressman told about 500 well-wishers who greeted him yesterday at the Mott Haven railroad station in the Bronx.

Lynch was returning from Rochester where he was nominated Thursday by the Democratic state convention.

Lynch was to spend the week-end at his summer home at Belle Harbor, Queens. Another reception was scheduled there this afternoon.

For Dewey, his visit to the fair wound up a busy political week that had included the GOP state convention at Saratoga Springs.

His sharp criticism of the Truman administration continued the tone he set in his acceptance speech at the convention Thursday night.

He emphasized that "every step this country takes must be designed to defeat the Communists efforts to split us from our friends."

"We cannot stay alive without friends," he said. "Our foreign bases and foreign friends are preventing a third world war today."

To illustrate his comment that "no one knows where the U. S. stands," Dewey said "Last January President Truman announced that we would not defend Formosa. In June the President said we would defend the island. Last week he said we would not defend it after the Korean war."

No Plan on Wages Yet; Essential Goods Due for War Effort

Washington, Sept. 9 (AP)—President Truman will broadcast to the nation (9:30 p. m. E.S.T.) tonight a report on how he plans to use the broadest economic control powers ever held by a United States president.

The power grant became effective when the President signed into law yesterday the control bill passed by Congress September 1. It gave Mr. Truman some-what greater authority than that held by President Roosevelt in World War II.

One use—to curb installment-plan buying—was invoked a few minutes after Mr. Truman signed the bill. This was a Federal Reserve Board order tightening effective September 18 credit terms that can be allowed buyers of autos and many other goods.

Mr. Truman himself has said he won't use his new wage-price-raising control powers in the near future. So the credit-tightening action will reach more directly into the lives of millions of Americans than any other steps now in the cards.

The credit curbs promised to clip the public's capacity to buy television sets, washing machines and so on.

Other orders to come are expected to curtail the availability of many consumer goods by directing essential materials required—such as steel and copper—to defense production.

To Speed Mobilization
The control program as a whole is intended to accomplish a mobilization speed-up and a check on inflation. Mr. Truman has warned that he shall have to make many changes in our way of living and working here at home.

Assignment of material priorities to military producers and limits on inventories of essential items to prevent hoarding are reported to be the next control steps contemplated by the administration.

But such moves as these—plus a tightening of mortgage credit terms in line with the new credit limits on goods purchases—awaited directions from Mr. Truman. He still must say which agencies will handle what powers so they can proceed to issue orders.

The Federal Reserve Board was able to act fast on consumer credit restrictions because Congress said specifically it should wield that control whereas it left it to the President to say who should handle the other controls.

Nazarene Church Youth Revival Set

Beginning Sunday, September 10 and continuing through September 17, the First Church of the Nazarene, Elmendorf street and Wiltwyck avenue, will conduct a youth revival campaign. The Rev. Fred F. Fike, pastor, will be the speaker for these services and the variety of special music has been planned. The opening Sunday and on Monday night, the Rev. Ray Noggle, blind evangelist and singer, will have charge of the music. He will also speak during the Sunday school hour at 9:45 a. m. and will conduct the instrumental numbers.

This revival, according to the pastor, is the outgrowth of a spontaneous evangelistic fervor of the local congregation and has been preceded by three months of seeking. During the past 12 weeks without exception, there have been converts every week through the efforts of the local congregation. The revivals in colleges and churches of America which during the past year, have attracted such nationwide attention are proof that the day of revivals is not over, and the Rev. Mr. Fike states "that if America is to see the revival of religion needed, it will begin in the individual and in the local churches."

A cordial invitation is extended to all to attend these special evangelistic services.

Religious Radio Programs
Sponsored by the Kingston Ministerial Association, in cooperation with Station WKNY, the following broadcasts of Christian faith and life will be presented during the coming week: The devotions each day, Monday through Saturday, at 8:20 a. m. will be conducted by the following ministers as indicated: Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, the Rev. FOOTBALL BY TELEVISION

If there is any change this fall in the attitude of college football directors toward television, most of them probably are more concerned about the competition rather than less. Intercollegiate football leans heavily on its gate receipts, which have been generally good and growing better up to the beginning of the television era. Television started a bouncing revival of some athletic exhibitions which had been in the doldrums, the most prominent example being wrestling. But there seems to be an almost unanimous opinion among college athletic officials that if the new radio camera gets inside the football stadium the result will be financial ruin for this now healthy activity.

Two large schools with a different idea are the Universities of Michigan and Illinois. Their home games will be televised, not for broadcast but for showing in television theatres in Detroit and Chicago. The promoters of this scheme think that gate receipts now unheard of for college games are possible through the box offices of these special theatres. The experiment will be watched eagerly for theatre popularity and the effect on stadium attendance.

It is strange that of all sports football should be most apprehensive of television. A major element in the enjoyment of its games is found in the crowds, the noises, the infectious spirit which sweeps over the stands. It is hard to see how these things can be transported from stadium to living room, even by this new magic of television.

MALIK, AMERICAN ASSET

Jacob Malik, the Russian delegate to the Security Council, has one great merit. He has become the best show-piece that the United States has on the Council. By his arbitrary decisions as president for August and his savage attacks on all who did not accept as gospel every Russian falsehood, he has alienated everyone except the representatives of the satellite states. They have to say "Yes, sir" to Malik, or lose their careers, perhaps their lives. A number of states were not convinced, before the August sessions opened, that the Russians were as difficult as they have been painted. A month of listening to Malik has proved to them all that the United States was right about that point, at least.

It would be a mistake to blame Malik personally for his torrents of abuse. He is merely a phonograph, playing whatever record is given him. Any other Russian representative would do the same, or face recall. That fate is not out of the question for Malik, if his bosses should decide that, in his conduct of the Council presidency, he has been more clumsy than successful.

DREAM STUFF

The government of Thailand is able to recognize a good thing. It keeps a monopoly on the sale of opium, and thereby makes more than three million dollars a year. It gets more than two million in fees from the operators of opium dens. Moreover, the government has seized from smugglers more opium than it expects to sell this year. This makes for a high profit margin.

In this the Siamese show themselves more practical than Americans, who are supposedly practical people. When American liquor agents seize contraband, by due process of law it usually gets poured down the nearest police sink.

HIGHWAY NORMALCY

The motorist who came unscathed through the carnage of the Labor Day weekend is congratulating himself. It was the last holiday week-end of the season; there are no more of them to worry about until late November. He can relax and take a deep breath.

Can he? Holiday accidents are blamed on the heavy traffic, but traffic gets heavy on week-days, too. They are blamed on hurry, but people also hurry to work and home again. They are blamed on holiday recklessness, but there are many brands of everyday recklessness. The things which cause

A LETTER TO LEE PRESSMAN

My Dear Lee Pressman:
You will recall the Nye Committee and the La Follette Committee.

You and your colleagues used the Nye Committee to get at the facts of American industry and to lessen this country's ability to defend itself. Most people do not remember the Nye Committee. It was one of the most scandalous performances in the American Congress, and Gerald Nye, a senator from North Dakota, was an innocent dupe. He could not possibly have known how he was being used by counsel and investigators for that committee, among whom was Alger Hiss.

Then there was the La Follette Committee, which did a hatchet job on American industry. It set out to smear every defender of the American system of free enterprise. It did more than any other agency to destroy confidence, by falsehood, by half-truth, by innuendo, by distortion, in the American productive machine.

Your former friend, John Abt, was the counsel for that committee and Charles Kramer was its investigator. The data that the Nye Committee failed to get, the La Follette Committee did get. In a word, the power and authority of Congress was employed by you and your colleagues to undermine, to malign, to break down confidence in the American industrial organization.

The National Labor Relations Act was passed by Congress. You know that you were one of its principal authors. You know that Senator Wagner did not write that act. You know who did write it.

Your former friend, Nathan Witt, was appointed counsel to the National Labor Relations Board. He ran that board. He used it to destroy whatever amicable relations existed between employers and employees in American industry.

Do you remember the strike at Republic Steel in Chicago? Is it true that Nathan Witt said to Tom Girdler: "When you talk to me, you talk to the government of the United States," in so arrogant a manner that Tom Girdler correctly said: "You mean the Detroit strike in the automobile industry, need never have taken place; that Professor Leo Wolman of Columbia University had worked out a procedure for a peaceful correction of all the problems facing that industry. You know that that strike was organized by the group that came into control of the Nye Committee, the La Follette Committee and the National Labor Relations Board."

Now, John L. Lewis is no Communist and he has kept them out of the United Mine Workers. He did not lead the C.I.O. with Communists in the administrative and organizational positions. You did.

You and Sidney Hillman used the early years of the C.I.O. as your own private political arm. To what purpose? Sidney Hillman, as you know, was an ambitious, conniving politician with a pleasant, disarming facade.

I am reminding you of these things because when a man announces that he has had a change of heart, he must tell all. Conversion must be accompanied by confession.

I would welcome you into the company of Red-baiters, if it means you, but I cannot trust you as long as you do not tell the whole truth of the interlocking counsel—Alger Hiss, John Abt, Nathan Witt, and Lee Pressman.

The Korean war has frightened you. Fear is no substitute for conversion. You must do better than that if you want to be believed.

Let me tell you what you ought to do:

1. Tell the entire story of the Harold Ware Cell.

2. Tell the whole story of the Nye Committee and how much of the data was given to the Communist party and Soviet Russia.

3. Tell the whole story of the La Follette Committee and how it was used as a propaganda machine to stir up distrust of American industry.

4. Tell the story of how Nathan Witt and Ed-Edwards came into control of the National Labor Relations Board.

5. Tell the story of the employment of Communists in the administrative and organizational positions of the C.I.O.

You can do a job for your country if you tell what you know and open your files. If you do not do that kind of a job, many of us will always question the bona fides of your conversion.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

ONE-SIDED HEADACHE

One of the meanest forms of headache is what is known as migraine. In this the headache is usually on one side, and often present with it is nausea and vomiting.

While it is gratifying to know that an attack of migraine can usually be relieved by ergotamine tartrate (gynergen), the cause of the migraine attack is unknown in most cases and as the patient doesn't know when an attack may occur, plans for business or pleasure must often be dropped on short notice.

For many years research workers investigating patients who suffer with migraine reported that migraine is commonly found in hard workers who stretch their physical and mental ability to the limit. They are ambitious, unusually clean about their home and person. Thus the general opinion regarding the migraine patient is that he or she exhausts himself or herself and exhaustion is the cause of the attack. It is pointed out that most of these patients recover within a few days by resting quietly in a dark room.

In the British Journal of Ophthalmology, Dr. Vera B. Walker reports 100 cases of migraine, each of which fully satisfy the definition "a paroxysmal (sudden, violent) attack of severe headache usually on one side and often associated with vomiting, nausea and disorders of vision." Patients with severe headache are checked for errors of refraction, ability to distinguish letters or objects at normal distances. Fifty per cent of migraine patients have eye symptoms. Clinical trials and skin tests proved 54 patients allergic.

"If a patient has allergic migraine, that is, is sensitive to foods, feathers, furs, dusts, he can be helped by avoiding these substances to which he is especially sensitive or by being desensitized (given very small amounts until his system can handle them without disturbing symptoms)," Dr. Walker states.

The average blood pressure of the allergic patients was lower than the normal range, so it is concluded that migraine in patients with low blood pressure may be due to allergy.

The knowledge that allergy may be causing migraine should mean that many patients may be desensitized and thus relieved of these distressing attacks.

Allergy

Write today for Dr. Barton's helpful booklet entitled "Allergy" (sensitivity to various foods and other substances). the terrible holiday toll put danger into every day on the streets and highways. They are part of the normal situation.

It's a good idea to relax and take a deep breath before taking the wheel. From then on it's a better idea to be alert.

The Sun Shines East, the Sun Shines West—

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By BREW PEARSON

Washington—Unpublished intelligence reports reaching Washington from various parts of the world tell a depressing story of lowered American military prestige as a result of Korea.

Confidential reports from friendly British sources here this week say that the British embassies in France, Belgium and Holland, for instance, report that in case of war with Russia these countries probably would not fight. Our own embassies substantiate this.

Even the published reports tell a story that is bad enough. From Paris the Associated Press reports: "The crisis in Korea has brought the American position in France to a low point. . . . There has been a wave of dismay at American reverses. . . . It is staggering to hear Frenchmen talk about capitulation (to Russia)."

And in Germany, where most Americans have bilthly figured we could raise a German army to support us, comes the opposite note from our best friend, Chancellor Adenauer, who says that Germans need American troops to support them, rather than American troops to support the U. S. A.

"Until now," says the chancellor, "Germany maintained its spirit against the spread of communism by faith in the American armed forces. But events in Korea have had a noticeable effect, and there is a sense of helplessness that the Russians will take over."

"American troops in Germany, therefore, should be increased by three more divisions in three months, with a total of 10 divisions later."

The above is a cross-section of reaction from our friends in western Europe. Intelligence reports from areas less friendly, such as the Arab states and the Orient, are far worse.

Military Mistakes
Precedent in the War and Navy Departments has been against prying into military mistakes. After previous wars, the files dealing with military blunders have been locked up. A dozen or so high-ranking U. S. generals were "busted" in the European Theatre during World War II, but only fragmentary facts concerning the honors ever leaked out. And in the Pacific, Mac-

Arthur exercised even tighter censorship regarding certain errors, including his own still unexplained error in letting all his planes get destroyed at Clark Field shortly after Pearl Harbor.

In the Korean crisis, however, congressional sentiment is growing for a forthright examination of our military errors and fearful lack of preparedness. Sen. Lyndon Johnson of Texas, himself a naval commander in the Pacific, has been tentatively picked as the committee chairman to do the probing, and here are some of the things he will be asked to examine:

1. Lack of Troop Training—MacArthur had the biggest segment of American troops under him in Japan. They were on a war footing, with plenty of time for maneuvers. Yet all reports from the battle front indicate that his troops were softer, greener, less prepared than troops trained in the U. S. A.

2. Bazookas—It was known at the end of World War II that Russian tanks were powerfully armed. It was also known that our 4-inch bazookas were inadequate. Yet we sent men into battle with these same almost useless bazookas. This was sheer murder.

The military had five years to prepare a new type of bazooka, but none were on deck in Japan when the Korean war broke. It is reported that heavy orders placed for the smaller bazooka and not countermanded toward the end of the war is part of the answer. These factories just kept on making useless bazookas.

3. Tanks—During most of World War II, U. S. tanks were inferior to German tanks, while the Russians publicly cluded us regarding the lend-lease tanks we sent them. After the war we junked thousands of our own tanks, apparently without making any serious attempt to develop a tank that could meet the Russians. In brief, the Pentagon planners were woefully asleep.

4. Air Force—MacArthur had the largest chunk of U. S. air power to be found anywhere in the world when the Korean war started. But for many agonizing days at the start, 70 per cent of his planes were kept on the ground. This was not due to bad weather alone, but to the fact that MacArthur feared a Russian air strike at Japan. Many military men disagreed with him on this, pointing out that planes over Korea require only an hour to get back to defend Japan, and that time in the Korean war was priceless.

5. Slow Troop Movements—In the first weeks of Korean fighting, troops moved from Japan to Korea with tragic slowness. From Japan to Korea is only 120 miles—the distance to Philadelphia from Washington—but at that crucial time when we had more bases in Korea, troops moved in dribs and drabs. MacArthur's excuse was that he feared a Russian attack on Japan, though many in Washington argued that Moscow would never risk an atom bomb and a world war by attacking Japan.

6. Top Officers—The U. S. Air Force commander in Japan is Gen. George Stratemeyer, who occupied a relatively noncombat berth during the war in the China-India theatre. He is not a skilled tactical commander but, despite this, the air force has kept him on in Korea—some explain because he has the knack of getting along with MacArthur.

Gen. Walton Walker, MacArthur's ground force commander, though seeing important European service under Patton, is not considered one of the army's top men. In Japan he was noted for having the best house in the Tokyo-Yokohama area, having commandeered it from the head of Standard Oil and refused to relinquish it. Americans who lunched with him were awed by the general's luxurious surroundings, including the fact that eight Geisha girls stood bowing at the door as the guests entered, not lifting their heads until the guests had passed.

The old jungle commanders who brought MacArthur's troops up from the southwest Pacific and who are skilled in the current type of Korean fighting are not with him anymore, and at least one of them, Gen. Robert Eichelberger, hero of Buna, has made it quite clear that he would not want to serve under MacArthur again.

Inquiring senators feel that the lives of hundreds of heroic G.I.s and combat officers could have been saved by more planning, more preparedness, and more forthrightness at the top.

DOUBLE-HEADER

As I've reported in this column before, I was born September 6, 1899. On the same date two years later, McKinley was shot, and there are plenty of fellows on Broadway who will tell you they shot the wrong man.

Anyhow, be that as it may, when I woke up on the morning of September 8, 1950, my two heads began to argue with each other.

What's that? You didn't know I had two heads? Of course I have. When I was born on a kitchen table on the lower East Side 51 years ago, I had one, but 15 years later, day and date with my first pay check, I began to sprout a second.

In recent years, as readers of this column know, I've been a badly confused man, my two brains seldom agree on anything, and as a result I seldom know whose corner I'm in, what team I'm rooting for, which cheering section I belong to.

When I got up Wednesday, both heads yawned, blinked and then remembered what day it was.

"Happy birthday," said Head No. 1.

"What's happy about it?" said Head No. 2. "A birthday is just a comma between erth and erp."

"Mad aliteration and worse logic," said No. 1. "A man is as old as he feels."

"Think so," said No. 2. "Well, try touching your toes and you'll find that a man is as old as he is old."

I reached out for my usual cutting-up cigarette.

"That's another thing I've been meaning to take up with you," Head No. 2 went on. "Now, if your lungs are 51, don't you think it's about time you cut down on your smoking?"

And while you're at it, how about doing something about that waistline? The Hollywood son of a gun is able to think you're a pumpkin and start cutting holes in it."

"Save your breath," said Head No. 1. "I get a lot of pleasure out of tobacco and I'm not giving them up for you or any other head."

"Okay, it's your funeral," said No. 2. "And incidentally, speaking of funerals, what's this I read in the papers about your doing a television show this fall? I thought you were through scrounging around for an additional hot buck."

"What birds build the most beautiful nests?"

A The humming bird, whose nest is an exquisite cup less than two inches across, of felt, plant, fern, or dandelion-seed down. It is covered so perfectly with moss and lichens and fastened with spider webs so as to appear a more protruberance on the limb of a tree.

Q When was the Lee Mansion at Arlington Cemetery built?

A In 1802. The Lee Mansion or Arlington House was the home of George Washington Parke Custis.

Q Is an alien considered an American on taking out his U. S. American citizenship papers?

A No. If a person is considered merely a declaration of intention he is not considered an American citizen until he has received his final naturalization papers.

Sparrow Blamed for Death
Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 9 (AP)—A sparrow was blamed for Mrs. C. A. Hillman's death and for the death of a young woman who died yesterday.

The body of the 18-year-old woman was found submerged in her bathtub. Medical Examiner John P. Hyland said she apparently fainted from lack of oxygen after lighting a small heater for her bath. Whether her death was accidental drowning or asphyxiation was to be determined today. A file attached to the body was labeled "A sparrow's nest." The bird was dead in the nest.

Shirley May Cline and Harry Streeter, Jr., Are Married at Trinity Methodist Church

Miss Shirley May Cline, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Burton J. Cline, Jr., of 118 Broadway, became the bride Sunday of Harry D. Streeter, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry D. Streeter of 8 Brewster street, in a double ring, afternoon ceremony at Trinity Methodist Church, with the Rev. Ivan Gosso officiating. The church was decorated with summer flowers, Raymond Howe, the soloist, sang "Through the Years," "O Promise Me" and "Wonderful Love." Charles Shuts was the organist. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of silk marquisette with a high neckline, lace ruffles outlining the shoulders, fitted bodice, and a full hoop skirt falling in lace and marquisette ruffles to a two-yard train. Her fingertip veil of illusion with matching lace was caught to a heart shaped crown trimmed with clusters of seed pearls. She carried an old fashioned bouquet. Maid of honor was Gwen Longendyke of 50 German street, who wore blue marquisette with a large blue picture hat. She carried an old fashioned bouquet. The bridesmaids were Mrs. Herbert Bundy, 13 Franklin street, and Mrs. DeForest Shaver of Port Ewen. They wore silk marquisette, one in green and the other in yellow, styled with short sleeves, double collar, forming a v-neckline, fitted bodices, full skirts, and wide sashes. They had matching heart shaped bouquets and carried old fashioned bouquets. Best man was DeForest Shaver of Port Ewen, and ushers were Raymond Kliner, 189 Abner street, and Charles Schoonmaker, 55 Grant street. After a reception for 65 guests at the I.O.O.F. Hall on Brewster street, the couple left for a wedding trip to New York, the bride wearing a blue dress with blue and grey accessories. They will make their home on Wilbur avenue. The bride attended Central Park High School, Schenectady, and the groom attended Kingston High School. He is employed at Forest's Packing Company.

V.F.W. Auxiliaries To Give Parties for Castle Point Patients

A social party will be held Monday evening for about 180 veterans, bed patients at the Castle Point Hospital, by V.F.W. volunteers. It was announced today. Other such parties will be held the second Monday of each month. At a recent meeting in Poughkeepsie of V.F.W. Auxiliaries and County Council Presidents, Hospital chairmen and others interested in hospital work $24 was collected to help with this project. Mrs. Frances McKown, president of District No. 2 and V.F.W.V.A. Hospital chairmen at Castle Point, announced that there would be an indoctrination course given at the hospital on Tuesday and Thursday evenings, October 17 and 19 starting at 7 p. m. This course consists of lectures and films and all who attend are entitled to wear the V.F.W. hospital uniform of maroon and beige, and help in the hospital's recreational program. Auxiliaries of Beacon, Poughkeepsie, Cold Spring, Saugerties and Kingston were represented. Attending from Kingston were the Auxiliary President, Mrs. William Jordan, Past Presidents Mrs. Sidney Lane and Mrs. Ralph Seism, Chaplain and Hostess, Mrs. Miss Hazel Greene and Hudson Valley County President Mrs. Howard Shullis. "It was very evident from the large number present at this meeting that V.F.W. Auxiliary members are keenly interested in the hospital and will give generously of time and money to carry it on successfully," Mrs. Shullis said.

Stockholm Appeal Denounced Here By B'nai B'rith

Arthur B. Ewig, chairman of the Anti-Defamation League Committee of the Kingston B'nai B'rith Lodge, has today announced that the Kingston Lodge and Chapter have joined with the 10 major Jewish Organizations which have denounced the "Stockholm Appeal" and characterized as a "despicable divide-and-conquer tactic" the appeal of a version of the pro-Communist position directed specifically to Jewish groups.

In a statement recently released, the Jewish organizations called upon "all who wish to serve the peace of the world and the preservation of freedom to reject with calm and common-sense, the Stockholm Appeal." The organizations charged that "those who assist the unscrupulous Communist aggressors in advancing this instrument of their destructive purposes make use of every device of confusion and distortion."

Organizations which signed the statement were: American Jewish Committee; American Jewish Congress; Anti-Defamation League; Association of Jewish Chaplains in the Armed Forces; B'nai B'rith; Jewish Labor Committee; Jewish War Veterans of U. S. A.; National Community Relations Advisory Council; National Council of Jewish Women; and Union of American Hebrew Congregations.

Declaring that the fraudulence of the appeal directed to Jews is "transparent," the statement pointed out that the endorsements contained therein "obviously come from pro-Communists, from those behind the Iron Curtain who had no choice, or from innocents who have been duped by the spurious appeal. If indeed the endorsements are authentic."

Pointing out that circulation of the Stockholm Appeal has in some instances provoked groups to violence, the statement said: "American democracy can and must be preserved not by abolishing the cherished principles of civil liberties but by confident reliance upon lawful processes and the appropriate governmental agencies."

Jewish New Year, Day of Atonement

The New Year known as Rosh Ha-shonah and the Day of Atonement known as Yom Kippur are the most solemn days of the Jewish religious year. They are celebrated on the 1st and 10th days of Tishri, the seventh month of the lunar year. They fall on September 12 and September 21, 1950. This Jewish year, 5711, is dated from the traditional date of the creation of the world.

The holidays begin on the sun-down of the preceding evening, September 11 and September 20. The Bible explains this custom of the day beginning on the evening before the first chapter of the Book of Genesis where the text reads: "And there was evening and there was morning, the first day."

The ten days between New Year and the Day of Atonement are known as the Days of Penitence and the Sabbath that falls between the two High Holy Days is known as the Sabbath of Repentance. Orthodox and Conservative Jews celebrate two days of Rosh Ha-shonah, namely the 12th and 13th, while Reform Jews celebrate only on the 12th.

The new year was always a sacred day in the life of ancient Israel which was an agricultural nation. The seasons were dependent on changes of the moon and the new moon was greeted as a solemn festival celebrated by special sacrifices, cessation of work and the blowing of the Shofar or ram's horn. The seventh New Moon was especially marked as the New Year because of the sacred number seven.

The New Year is celebrated in the synagogues and temples, first as a Day of Memorial when the past is recalled, an inventory of the present is taken and the future considered in the light of possible improvement and second, as a Day of Judgment when one stands before the Supreme Judge of all the earth. It points to the time when all Israel and the entire world will recognize that "on the day the Eternal shall be One and His name shall be One." The ram's horn is blown in temples and synagogues according to the ancient custom of Israel. Services will be held the evening of September 11 and the morning of September 12 and the morning of September 13 in Orthodox Synagogues.

Notice prepared by Commission on Information About Judaism of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations and The Central Conference of American Rabbis.

Three Accidents Are Reported to Police

Kingston police received three accident reports Friday night. No serious personal injuries were reported.

Automobiles driven by Herbert Joseph Houghtaling, 20, of 63 Stephen street, and Owen George Studd, 20, of 72 Moore street, were both damaged in a collision at Broadway and Hoffman street about 11:45 p. m. Friday, police said. No injuries were reported at that time of the accident.

At 1:15 p. m. Friday, police said Mrs. Clara Storey of 136 Clinton avenue was knocked to the pavement when she was struck by a youngster riding a bicycle. The accident occurred as Mrs. Storey stepped from the curb at the intersection of Clinton avenue and St. James street. Mrs. Storey

Forms Are Mailed To Area Lenders In Housing Census

Report forms for the Survey of Residential Financing, a part of the 1950 Census of Housing, are being mailed this week to lending institutions in this area, it was announced today by District Supervisor, G. Arthur Sager. Information collected from lenders will supplement the data obtained from borrowers in July and August in the initial phase of the survey. The non-farm mortgaged residential properties being covered in the survey were selected on a sample basis to provide representative information on this important subject without incurring the expense of a complete census.

The average lending institution in this area will be asked for information on from one to seven mortgages with the exception of the largest lenders which may be asked to handle up to 15. Every effort has been made to relieve lenders of any undue burden in replying to the questionnaires. Many of the questions can be answered by checking boxes providing for alternative answers.

Data developed in the Survey of Residential Financing will provide material which will bridge the wide gaps which exist today in available statistics on mortgage financing of residential properties. In addition to tabulating and summarizing items related to residential mortgage indebtedness, the Bureau of the Census will also relate them to pertinent information obtained in the census of population and housing.

Some of the tabulations will relate mortgage characteristics to the characteristics of the property. For single-family structures, the mortgage data will also be related to the number of rooms and type of housing facilities. In the case of owner-occupied single-family homes, the data will be cross-tabulated with race, age, and occupation of the head of household, and annual income of the owner and related members of the family.

Here are the questions to be asked of lenders in September:

1. What type of indebtedness do you own or service on this property? (Examples: First mortgage, sales contracts, etc.)

2. Is the present mortgage (a) insured by Federal Housing Administration (b) guaranteed or insured by Veterans' Administration?

3. In what year was the present mortgage made or assumed?

4. What was the term in years of the present mortgage when made or assumed?

5. What was the original amount of the present mortgage when made or assumed?

6. What is the present unpaid balance on this mortgage?

7. What rate of interest is being paid at the present time?

8. Are regular payments required on this mortgage (a) for interest (b) for principal?

9. In addition to interest and principal, what "other items" (such as taxes) are included in the required payments?

10. How often are regular payments required (a) for interest (b) for principal?

11. What is the total amount of the regular required payment? How much of this amount is for interest and principal combined, and how much is for "other items"?

12. Will the required payments on the present mortgage pay off the loan completely by date of maturity?

13. What is the current status of mortgage payments: (a) ahead in scheduled payments (b) up-to-date (c) past due by 30 days or more?

14. Classify the mortgage holder as: (a) commercial bank or trust company (b) mutual savings bank (c) savings and loan association (d) life insurance company (e) mortgage company (f) Federal National Mortgage Association (g) individual estate (h) other.

15. Did the holder of the mortgage purchase it or originate it? Statistics will be published for the United States as a whole, for four geographic areas, and for 25 of the larger standard metropolitan areas.

Firemen Check Refuse Blaze on City Truck

A load of refuse on a city truck caught fire about 9 a. m. today and was extinguished by firemen after it had been dumped into the street.

The truck, driven by Harry Letus, was a regular Board of Public Works truck engaged in picking up refuse along McEntee street. The crew noticed smoke coming from the load, and the driver quickly pulled to the side of the street near the McEntee-Flexport street intersection, dumping the load. The fire department was summoned and extinguished the blaze with a booster line.

The Public Works Department dispatched another truck and crew immediately to clean up the rubbish as soon as the fire was extinguished. Cause of the fire has not been determined, but may have come from hot ashes, the Public Works Department said.

The price of Moore's Porch & Deck Paint advertised Wednesday night by Herzog's should have been $1.39 a quart instead of $1.35 a gallon.

told police she received bruises to the face and both hands, but did not request medical attention at the time.

Nathan Cherrick reported to police at 5:50 p. m. Friday that his automobile was struck and considerably damaged while it was parked in front of his home at 348 Washington avenue. The offending vehicle continued without stopping, he told police.

Home Resident Missing

An aged resident of the Ulster County Home at New Paltz has been reported missing from that place since shortly after breakfast Friday morning. He was identified as Charles Guy, 83, weight about 165 pounds, of short, stocky build. When last seen, he was walking along highway toward Tillsen and was wearing blue dungarees, blue shirt and a gray hat, the sheriff's office reported.

Rail Check Found

A check belonging to the New York Central Railroad and several other papers were discovered on the ground behind the Ruzzo Bowlatorium on Grand street about 12:10 a. m. today, police reported. The papers appeared to have come from the United States mail being transported on the railroad, and an investigation will be conducted by postal authorities.

Allies Hold . . .

plane flights were made, most of them on the vital northeastern front between Yongchon and Kyongju.

Some planes lashed at Red positions in the Nakdong river bridgehead west of Yongchon, 25 miles north of Battul mountain. At least one band of Communists broke from ridge positions opposite the U. S. Second Division's center and fled toward the Nakdong, AP Correspondent Don Huth reported from that sector.

AP Correspondent Jack MacBeth reported from the Yongchon front that allied forces welded their once broken lines late Saturday at the end of a three day assault.

Three thousand South Koreans there rammed out gains of more than two miles southeast of Yongchon to link with American and other Republican troops punching westward from Kyongju, which is 15 miles southwest of the Red-held east coast port of Pohang.

The junction in the mud of rain-lashed battlefields knit together a five-mile breach in the defensive wall that Communist tank columns had smashed out in a breakthrough earlier in the week.

Yongchon, gateway to Taegu, 20 miles to the east, was recaptured Friday from the Red who held it briefly.

The North Korean radio has claimed Yongchon for two days. Sealing the line helped reduce the threat to Taegu from this battle flank, behind which 50,000 Communist troops were trying frantically to build up power for a new thrust.

The second gateway to Taegu from the north was held solidly throughout the day. U. S. First Cavalry troops beat back hammering Red attacks against their dominating ridge positions seven miles north of Taegu, the main base of the Korean central warfare.

Between the U. S. 2nd Division and the First Cavalry Division, British troops beat off probing attacks by smaller Red forces. They are guarding an area west of Taegu, just below the bend in the Nakdong river to the east.

While the ground fighting intensified South Korean marines—an ill equipped outfit that has been snatching islands off the coast from the Reds—slipped far to the north and landed on Taeyongpung Island in Haeju Bay, 70 miles due south of Pyongyang, the North Korean capital.

A naval spokesman said the purpose was to clamp a tighter hand on the seaborne movement of Communist supplies down the west coast.

B-29s bombed Haeju City, near where the marines landed, aiming at the Chosen Explosives Manufacturing Co.

Earlier Lt. Gen. Walton H. Walker, U. S. 8th Army commander in Korea, disclosed that the Communists offensive began September 1 was the largest the Reds have mounted since the war began on June 25.

He said also that last Sunday was his darkest day. Powerful Red columns then were punching at both ends of the front toward Masan, the gate city to Pusan, and Yongchon, from where they could strike west at Taegu or south at Pusan.

General Walker did not say so but it was apparent that U. N. troops were trying to cement their lines quickly Saturday in advance of an anticipated renewed Red punch of major proportions.

Intelligence officers have warned repeatedly in the last two days that the estimated 125,000 Red troops still facing the curling battleline have the power to "hit again and are being reinforced frantically."

118 Miners Await

Man to crawl through. But the exit was blocked by a 1,000 foot layer of colorless, odorless black damp gas.

Giant fans were set to work clearing the escape hatch but it was a slow job. Colliery officials said it might be hours before the men could be brought out safely.

Grouped around the pithead of the Knockninch Castle mine, red-eyed, roiling and fends waited for word that the men had been released.

Dr. William Reid, chairman of the Scottish division of the National Coal Board, warned that the rescue might be delayed for many hours.

Even when all the gas is sucked out it will take a long time to get all the men to the surface. They will have to crawl through the escape tunnel one at a time.

Malik Is Expected

delegates say that he has not yet threatened outright to veto the report.

Veto No. 45 also may come, some speculated, at the next public meeting Monday (scheduled 2 p. m. E.S.T.). Malik may use it on a U. S. proposal for India and Sweden to form an inquiry commission into charges that U. S. planes have bombed Chinese territory in Manchuria.

Veteran Cast Ready For Foundation Play

Woodstock, Sept. 7—Last year's principals will be seen in this year's ensemble when the Woodstock Foundation presents "Gold in the Hills" at the Woodstock Playhouse September 15 and 16.

People like Sidney Berkowitz, Fritz Striebel, John Pike, Nick Fox, Nancy Summers, Dave Huffine and George Hard who played important roles in last year's performance of the modern drama will not be left out in the cold when the piece is repeated by popular demand. They will appear as bawdy characters in the barroom scene which makes the second act of the play into an old-time vaudeville show together with other capable people who will present specialties which will contribute color and humor to the main theme of the three-act thriller.

Dudley Summers and Mrs. Emmet Edwards, co-chairmen in charge of ticket sales, announce that the box office at the Woodstock Playhouse will be open from 2 to 5 p. m. Wednesday and Thursday, Sept. 13 and 14, and the box office for Saturday and Sunday will be open at noon and tickets will be sold until curtain time.

Sets representing the kitchen of an old farmhouse and the garish interior of a Bowery barroom will be designed by John Pike and built by Woodstock artists and stage technicians. The numerous properties will be assembled by Marge Huffine and Zella Pike.

Blazy Recounts His Boy's State Experiences

Woodstock, Sept. 7—At the last monthly meeting of the American Legion Woodstock Post, 1025, the guest speaker of the evening was Martin Blazy who attended Boy's State University Campus last June.

Blazy gave an interesting and detailed account of his experiences while at Boy's State. He explained that his job while there was to distribute copies of the "Empire Citizen," the Boy's State newspaper, and described his participation in the general program. Certificates were awarded at the end of the week stating the office each boy had held and that they had completed the course in self-government at Colgate University.

Blazy thanked the Woodstock post for sending him to Boy's State, and said that his only regret was that the other boys couldn't have gone, too, that they might have had as much fun as he did.

Among the prominent visitors who spoke at Boy's State, Blazy said they included a New York city judge, an F.B.I. agent, Governor Thomas E. Dewey's secretary, the dean of Colgate University and the education editor of the New York Herald Tribune.

Frances Stein Show Is Final of Season

Woodstock, Sept. 7—The current and final exhibition of the season at the Town House presents a one-man show of paintings by Frances Stein.

A versatile painter, Mrs. Stein's subjects range from landscapes and still lifes to arresting compositions containing single and group portraits. Predominantly low in key, her landscapes are characterized by storm-swept skies which lend movement and atmosphere to the canvases. Painted with telling strokes particularly outstanding are "Kings-ton Flats," a charming "Village Street," and "Little Town," which is exceptionally subtle in color.

The exhibition will remain at the Town House until September 30.

Leaves $818,073

Lockport, N. Y., Sept. 9.—The late Harry H. Hooker, Niagara Falls industrialist, left a net estate of $818,073, according to a state tax appraisal on file here yesterday.

Tumor Clinic . . .

Cancer Society totals $13,150.

Last year, the Society granted this county a total of $19,000 to assist in establishing the clinic.

County Quota Same

Dr. O'Connor points out that, despite this valuable aid, the Society has not imposed a larger quota upon the county for its annual fund drives. The quota has remained at $12,000.

The close relationship between the Society and the tumor clinic here has worked to mutual advantage. The clinic benefits not only from the financial assistance received, but also has the value-

FALSE TEETH FEEL REAL

A famous doctor formulated WLDJ to make dental plates feel like your own teeth. WLDJ Powder sets like a cushion on the gums and mouth. Holds false teeth tight—no sliding or rocking. WLDJ is harmless if accidentally swallowed, because it does not contain irritating borax or sodium borate. It does not develop a bad taste with constant use. WLDJ stays pure white at all times and does not turn brown or gray when mixed with water. A large economy can of WLDJ will last you a long time. Add only a one dollar bill to WLDJ Company, Ray 76, Flatbush Station, Brooklyn 26, N. Y.
